GREEN WAVE RIDERS INSIDE THE COPENHAGEN TSUNAMI

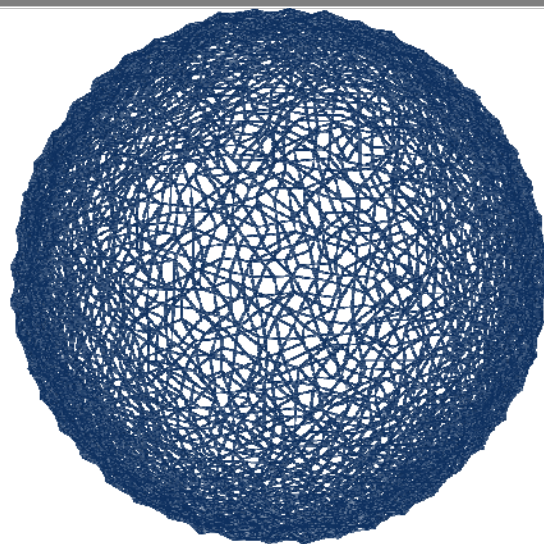

MULTIMEDIA PUBLIC LECTURE by
ROBERT KAKARIGI

International masters degree in sustainable development and ecotechnology

EUROPSKI DOM ZAGREB; Jurišićeva 1/I; Thursday; 11 February 2010; 18:00
The lecture will be in Croatian; Admission is free

What really happened at the UN Climate Change Conference in Copenhagen? What was agreed at COP 15 and what was left out? Where the European Union, the United States, China and Croatia stand on climate change and Copenhagen? What role civil society, politicians and businesses played at COP 15? Who are the green wave riders? What do you know about the Green Lighthouse, Denmark's first public carbon neutral house? Does green revolution have a potential to jumpstart Croatian economy? What to expect from COP 16 in Mexico? Robert Kakarigi will try to provide the answers to all those questions.

The author, Mr. Robert Kakarigi, is a writer, photographer and expert advisor on sustainable development and ecotechnology at both the National Geographic Magazine and at the Elle Decor Magazine. He is graduate of the University of London, former lecturer at the Mid Sweden University, and founder of Eco Green Europe.
